

Bios

Lee enjoys and writes Christian stories that have action, suspense, and danger, with a twist of romance.

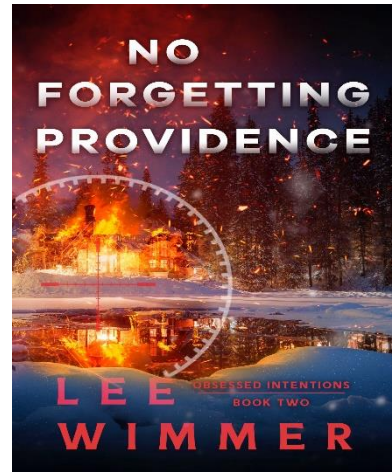

Lee's novels in shares all the danger, romance, and excitement his favorite movie characters experienced, only his characters are moved by God, not a secret agency.

Lee grew up in a time when larger than life heroes were everywhere, as war raged and protestors held sit-ins, they rescued damsels in distress and saved the world. It was only natural, when called to write, his Christian novels would share similar heroics.

Book Description

A man who can't escape his past. A group who can't let him go. Another adventure no one expected.

World-famous archaeologist and confident cruise-ship captain Dr. Steven (DR) Ray arrives back in Wall Lake, Michigan, confident the assassination attempt on him and his passengers was a rogue event.

Along with his girlfriend, he sets about healing and charting course toward a new future. Then she breaks their engagement the morning after he proposes. Now, he's again navigating the murky waters of love.

But when the obsession to take down DR proves relentless, love's the least of his problems.

Book Excerpt

"Whatever you do, don't use that." DR snagged the phone away from his friend. "Or any credit cards. Look, guys, we don't have any experience at this, so we'll have to try to remember things from the police detective shows. We can't use phones or credit cards. Nothing that uses electronic communications to verify. Cash only, or we'll have to steal it."

Tom nodded.

"Steal it?" Sam's eyes grew large, his voice sharp. "Aren't we already in enough hot water?"

"Seriously?" DR ground his teeth. "Would you rather be dead?"
